Henley's memo, Brown's reply are in this week's edition

On page four of this week's Citizen, readers will find the text of the memo from Town Manager Madeleine Henley explaining her reasons for firing town clerk Merton Brown. Also on that page are a reply from Brown regarding some of the charges raised in the memo, comments on his employment situation in the Town Office, and a statement from his attorney regarding circumstances in New Hampshire at the time of his shoplifting conviction. The Citizen's view on the matter is expressed on our opinion page.

E-911 is on the way in; some familiar road names on their way out

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Hayes Road in Greenwood, Route 26 in Newry, and the North-west Bethel Road in Bethel may soon be getting new names.

Name changes may be needed as part of the implementation of Enhanced 911 emergency service, which is scheduled to go on line state-wide in 1997.

The service will be an improvement on 911 service now in place. Currently, a caller reporting an emergency must give a dispatcher location, address or location.

With E-911, the address and telephone number at the call center is automatically displayed on a computer screen at the call center. It is automatically displayed on a computer screen at the call center. It is automatically displayed on a computer screen at the call center.

For E-911 to be successful, it is important that the location number be accurate. The location number must be accurate. The location number must be accurate. The location number must be accurate.

sure all roads—even private ones—have names that are unique within the town.

In the case of roads with similar sounding names, new names must be chosen to minimize the risk of confusion.

Greenwood Fire Chief Wayne Haskala is in charge of redesigning his town's E-911. He said the current difficulty in locating the site of an emergency demonstrates the need for change.

Last year, the confusion on the same road sometimes, he said.

Haskala said there are several road names in Greenwood that are easily confused, including the Hayes Road, just off the Hayes Hill Road, the Hayes Road, and the Old Greenwood Road, and two versions of the Pine Mountain Road.

Haskala said he is looking for names that will satisfy everyone.

Payment is 1 cent short -- so BC/BS cancels policy

Realizing her $206.84 check was a cent short, Lorraine Mills put a penny in the envelope, but BC/BS doesn't take cash

By ALISON ALOISIO

Who says a penny has no value anymore?

For lack of one, Lorraine Mills lost her health insurance coverage in December.

Mills, a long-time resident of Locke Mills, is a widow. Her husband, John, died three years ago. She lives on Social Security and half of John's original pension.

Mills has had an individual health insurance policy with Blue Cross/Blue Shield for about a year and a half.

Premiums for coverage for each month are due on the first of that month. She has been consistently sending in her monthly premium check of $206.85 after that, but still within the 31-day "grace period" noted in her insurance manual.

In December, Mills inadvertently wrote a check for $206.84 -- one cent short of the amount due. So she dropped a penny into the envelope with the check, sent it off, and thought nothing more of it.

That is, until she received an "Explanation of Benefits" statement early this month for two claims she filed in January.

The claims were denied. At the bottom of the notice was the statement "The certificate number or group number given was canceled prior to the date of service."

Mills called the company to see what had happened.

"They told me I was short a penny," she said last Thursday. "I said, 'Well, I put the penny in the envelope.' They told me, 'We don't accept cash for premium payments.'"

Gould teams on post-season win streak

By SCOTT BÉROME

Gould Academy's basketball and ski teams made the past week one to remember for Huskie fans.

Basketball team advances

On Saturday, Feb. 17 the Gould Academy varsity boys' basketball team walked into the Augusta Civic Center as the underdogs. They walked out with a solid 63-56 win over North Yarmouth Academy in the Western Class D quarterfinals.

Forward Lanny Popoola scored 23 points and grabbed 20 rebounds while sophomore Adam Vinson added 14 points and seven rebounds.

The Panthers held a 15-9 lead the second period, but Gould quickly gained momentum scoring 10 unanswered points.

A lay-up at the buzzer by junior guard Eugene Covington gave the Huskies a 25-23 lead at the half. They never looked back, at one point picking up a 12-1 run the third period to build their lead to 46-31 by the start of the fourth.

NYA tried to rally, but the line failed to catch and Gould took its first post-season win in nine years.

Gould (19-6) plays Richmond (#21) today (Wednesday) in the semifinals. The game begins at 9 a.m. in the Augusta Civic Center.

Alpine skiing

Valentine's Day was a sweet one for Gould Academy's alpine teams. Gould hosted the New England Prep School Division I Alpine Ski Championships at Sunday River and took home more than a box of chocolates -- they took home gold. The girls won the giant slalom, were second in the slalom, and won the overall championship with a score of 21 points.

The boys placed third in the slalom, but swept the giant slalom with a perfect score of six points to take second overall with 47 points. Eva Cardova won the girls' giant slalom and placed second in the slalom to lead her teammates to victory.

Drew Drommond, Parker Gray, and Dan LaBlanc took first, second and third, respectively, in the boys' giant slalom.

MAISAD Championships

On Feb. 16, Gould's varsity boys won the Maine Independent School Alpine Ski Championships, with 39 points.

The girls took second with 54 points, and six points behind Kent Hill School.

Gould's Corey Re-Luck, Brett Harvey, and Jeremy Van took

When you see me goin' fishin'
With my liver and my pole,
Just know it ain't so much the fish
That beck from hole to hole
As 'tis the fishin' --
Fishin' where the water's white --
Luv' worm, they oughter hit
Fishin' from a tumbled tree --
Big one snatched it, reel goes
'where'
Fishin' from a messy bank,
Waitin' for that thrilling yank --
'Tain't so much the fish I want
As 'tis the fishin' and the jaunt
When you see me goin' fishin'
With my fishin' pants and coat,
Just know it ain't so much the fish
As 'tis the wishin' --
Wishin' that more folks would go
Where the singin' waters flow;
Wishin' they'd just take a day
Wanderin' round up yonder way,
Wishin' folks would take the time
To go up there and think and climb
And fish and loaf -- I know it would
Do 'em just a world of good."

Stanley Foss Bartlett -- the man who put into words what all fishermen know in their hearts -- would have been 94 last week (Feb. 13).

But sadly, the talented Locke Mills native died in 1937 at the age of 35 of a brain tumor.

Still, in his three and a half decades Bartlett found time to become a prolific writer, as well as an accomplished artist and photographer.

Much of what Bartlett did -- and was -- is preserved in boxes and scrapbooks at the Locke Mills home of his nephew, Paul Bartlett.

There are three books: two of poetry ("Lost Hours" and "Silent Songs") and one of stories of the Maine woods ("Beyond the Sowdylunk").

There are articles, stories, tall tales, pen and ink drawings, cartoons and photographs. Many of them appeared during the 1920s and 1930s in the Lewiston Journal magazine section, "Field and Stream" magazine, and "The Northern" magazine (publication of Great Northern Paper Co.).

Some titles: "The Indian," "Our Friendship," "The Love Note" (all poems); "Maine Brook Fishing," "Touring the Tropics," "Scaling Old Speck" (articles).

There are also many examples of ads and product boxes (including the one for Needham candy bars) that he designed.

Bartlett loved nature in general and the Maine woods in particular. He studied forestry at the University of Idaho after graduating from Woodstock High School.

He then worked as a writer for the Great Northern Paper Co. magazine. That job took him to logging camps throughout Maine in the 1920s, where he found plenty of

"It's all part of living a little bit safer," he said of the changes.

In Bethel, there are also roads with similar names -- as well as some known by more than one name.

Code Enforcement Officer Norm Putnam is working on the project, which was authorized at a town meeting several years ago.

The late Henry Dombkowski did most of the numbering work at that time. He and Putnam also handled some of the street-naming. But E-911 guidelines are now better defined, Putnam said.

As a possible source of name confusion Putnam cited the West Bethel and Northwest Bethel roads, and the Sunday River and Sunday Valley Acres roads.

He said in the case of the West Bethel and Northwest Bethel roads, one option might be to rename the Northwest Bethel Road simply "Northwest Road."

"We want to let everybody know and see what they think," he told the Planning Board at a meeting last week.

Putnam said other roads known by more than one name could also present a problem. Part of the East Bethel Road, for example, is also known as the Locke Mills Road.

The state's Emergency Services Communication Bureau (the agency overseeing E-911 planning) also recommends naming private roads and fire lanes. Even long driveways are candidates for names, if there is a possibility that more houses will be built on them later.

Putnam said there are many unnamed roads in Bethel. He's asking residents to call the town office with locations of lesser-known roads. He'd also like to hear from people with ideas for renaming the roads with similar names.

"We're going to be looking for a lot of names," he said.

Route numbers discouraged
Route numbers are frowned upon by the state, because a house number coupled with a road number could cause confusion. An example would be "245 Route 232."

Route 26 in Newry is also known as the Bear River Road -- providing what appears to be an easy choice.

Mike Lynch is working on the project for that town. He said he will look for a consensus from residents for any roads in question.

Lynch also said there is a warrant article for this year's Town Meeting proposing an E-911 ordinance. It would set guidelines for naming roads and numbering structures.

Bethel, Greenwood and Newry have not yet set specific completion dates for their work on the project.

The state plan calls for residents to get a 30-day notice of when any name and number changes go into effect.

The state E-911 project also calls for the new road names and numbers to be used eventually as postal addresses, where possible.

Andover, Woodstock completed

In Woodstock, naming and numbering "is pretty much completed," said town manager Vern Maxfield.

He said most roads in town already had acceptable names. In the case of a portion of Old Route 26, residents agreed to call it "Rocky Road."

In Andover, the E-911 project was completed four years ago.

Fire chief Ken Dixon said that some roads had as many as four names throughout their entire length. "We went with the most recognizable or popular ones. The residents had a choice."

Dixon said there was a particular need for a new naming and numbering system at the time it was done "because we had a lot of new people moving in, and a lot of new firemen."

Dixon said the system has been a big hit with other services.

"FedEx and UPS love us," he said.

Waiver for Ruthie's new sign

By ALISON ALOISIO

Ruth Grover of Bethel may install a sign on her Main Street business with lettering twice the size allowed by the current ordinance, thanks to a waiver granted by the Planning Board last week.

The waiver was another in a series of sign waivers granted by the board since the new sign ordinance went into effect last year.

Grover, owner of "Ruthie's" plans to have 12-inch letters -- the same size as on her current sign -- painted on a new awning she plans to install.

The ordinance limits letter sizes on awnings to six inches.

Grover said six-inch letters could not be seen clearly. "There's no point in putting letters on there if they're not visible," she told the board.

Chairman Don Feeney favored the waiver, saying an existing sign was being replaced. Grover, he argued, was not asking for a new sign where there had never been a business before.

But Suzi Harrington said the board should "stick with the ordinance. What good is it if we keep giving waivers?" she said.

Hardship?

The sign ordinance states that waivers may be granted if hardship can be shown.

Citing that provision, Code Enforcement Officer Norm Putnam said he objected to the reasoning for the waiver rather than the waiver itself.

He was referring to the argument that the six-inch letters were unreadable.

Feeney said the hardship stemmed from the fact that Grover was trying to make an improvement to her business by replacing the original sign with letters of the same size.

Feeney, Frank Vogt, Don Bennett, Stan Howe, and Jack Cross voted in favor of Grover's request, with Harrington and Reggie Brown opposed.

the first, second, and fourth spot, respectively, in the giant slalom. Roderick placed second in the slalom, with Vail in third and Kevin Broderick in eighth place.

Christine Monzel won the girls' giant slalom, while teammates Liz Rosenthal and Betsy Wilson placed third and eighth, respectively.

Monzel took second in the slalom with Rosenthal in sixth and Amanda Barrett placing ninth.

J.V.'s victorious

On Feb. 15, Gould's "A" and "B" junior varsity boys' teams took first and second places in the Maine Independent School Alpine Ski Championships at Kents Hill School.

The girls "A" team won as well, with Marcy LaVallee of Bethel winning each of her four runs.

Gould Wins Nordic at Telstar

Jumping out to an early lead in the first leg, Gould Academy won the 4x3 kilometer mixed event at the 15th Annual Telstar Relays on Saturday, Feb. 17.

Joran Elias scrambled in the mass start and passed Oxford Hill's Mark Florenz after 1.5 kilometers. Skiing his leg in 9 minutes and 42 seconds, the fastest split of the day, Elias gave teammate Lindsey Molyneux a healthy 12 second lead to work with.

Molyneux didn't think that 12 seconds was enough, however. She posted the second fastest girls' time of the race, 11:52, and increased Gould's lead to 34 seconds before tagging to Scot Sawyer.

Sawyer added even more time to the Huskies' lead by skiing the course in 10:13. Anchor Margaret Shaner never looked back and cruised to the first place finish with an overall time of 44:12.

In other nordic news, Shaner was named as an alternate to the New England Junior Olympic Team. The Junior Olympics take place during the first week in March at Black Mountain in Rumford.

Shaner's sister, Chris, was also named to the team and will take time off from her studies at Dartmouth College to compete for New England.

What You Should Know About Deducting Medical Expenses

Even high medical costs can have an upside. The IRS says that medical expenses are deductible to the extent that they exceed 7.5% of your adjusted gross income (AGI). Even if your 1995 medical expenses weren't astronomical, you might have had enough to exceed the 7.5% floor and qualify for an itemized deduction.

Home improvement costs. If you modified your home to accommodate a medical condition, your home improvement costs are deductible to the extent they exceed the increase in your home's value. Say, for example, you installed central air conditioning to ease your dependent son's asthma. If you installed the system for $5,000 and it increased your home's market value by $2,500, you can deduct the $2,500 difference. Improvements made to accommodate a physically handicapped person--such as the installation of elevators, handrails, or support bars--are also deductible.

Travel costs. You can deduct transportation and lodging costs that are primarily for, and essential to, medical care for you, your spouse, and your dependents. For example, if a doctor asks you to stay at a hotel near the hospital of a sick child, you can deduct up to $50 a day of the lodging cost.

Other medical expenses. Several often-overlooked costs have also been allowed as a medical deduction. For example:

- Additional costs incurred to prepare foods for those with restricted diets.
- The cost of treating drug & alcohol abuse.
- Premium payments for medical insurance.
- Costs to remove hazardous lead-based paint.
- Additional expenses incurred to get publications in braille.
- The cost of orthopedic shoes, contact lenses, crutches, wheelchairs, hearing aids, elastic stockings, and false teeth.

If you think you might qualify for a medical expense deduction, give us a call. We'd like to help.

Andover

Changing Andover's current type of government will be the topic of discussion at the town hall on Thursday night. A public hearing on the alternative forms of town government will be held on Feb. 22 at 7 p.m. The research committee members: Fred Emerson, Brian Mills, Richard Plantier, Jane Rich, Kathy Williamson and Ed Witt, have concluded their study and are presenting three options to be considered. The different forms are: A) Town Manager and Three Selectmen; B) Administrative Assistant and Three Selectmen; or C) Five Selectmen. Many will agree that the current form of government does not seem to be running smoothly or efficiently and needs to be changed to meet the needs of Andover's townspeople.

Residents are reminded that Sunday, Feb. 25 is a Ski Free Day at Sunday River Ski Area. Tickets and

by Colista Morgan

In February for several years my brother Fred's children have taken me "deer hunting." Thirteen of us went last Sunday the 11th. We took the route from Trap Corner through Canton, Farmington, and Carabassett Valley through to Rangeley. When going through Carabassett Valley, I thought about the fishing trips my husband made there and the experiences he had there.

When I awoke that morning there was an ominously and heavy snow falling. Nevertheless, the decision was still "Go". We left Greenwood at 8:30 a.m. The roads were, lightly furrowed and dimpled with recent tracks. We passed little settlements and shady groves, my kind of country.

At times the snow ceased then returned. There were luxuriant forests and many brooks by the roadsides. At times we passed a vast uniform expanse of dark pine woods, particularly so, near billowy mountain scenery.

The winds were strange, as they swept through the big snowflakes, still falling. It gave a feeling of being far from people, even with new scenery constantly appearing.

When we neared the ski section of Sugarloaf the traffic was heavy.

Again we passed trackless woods covered with the falling snow, making them mysterious and dark, many miles of evergreen land.

In sections there was great black and white bulk rising into the sky. I had a desire to be able to climb to its top and look down the other side, a habit I used to follow through.

Of course those who know New England well do not need to be told much about its little towns, than that they are on a hill or in a bottom and each settlement paints a picture.

We arrived at Rangeley where we had lunch, then set off on our homeward way.

The snowmobilers were enjoying the lake by the attractive little town.

We viewed many places by rivers and lowlands which had been covered recently by high water and the fields and riverbanks were piled with broken ice. Many cart-roads led off the main highway. We looked more seriously now for deer. We certainly were not disappointed for in one herd there were too many to count. We estimated 40 or 50, a beautiful sight.

Our road home was through Wilson's Mills, Upton and Grafton Notch. Here were many memories for me for I had climbed many of the mountain trails. We saw no sunlight streaming in to gild the pinacles today and to leave broad dashes of yellow on gray walls, which rose sweeping up on either hand like the sides of a ship.

We arrived back in Greenwood not long after 4 p.m.

We had no sunny sky but there was plenty of sunshine from the group.

It has been cold, cold in Greenwood this week.

David Holt spent Sunday with his parents at the farm. Sally and Mary could not make it this week.

Rena Curtis has been ill but is feeling better. Several of her children have visited her.

The week before vacation was an exciting week for all of us. A school-wide Maine Studies Week took place, focusing on what our area, and the state of Maine is all about. We concentrated on, but were not limited to, five particular topics. We chose forestry, agriculture, artists and wildlife. Each class took at least one local field trip, and many classes were about to have two. Special guests presented a variety of activities. Our week was educational, fun and full of ideas about what people in our area do for a living. We visited local businesses, craftspeople, mills and farms. We learned about men and women in construction and how to make paper. We read stories about Maine and made blueberry muffins. We created art work with Duncan Slade and Jude E. Lamb. The unified Arts team from Oxford Hills Middle School taught us keyboarding, pottery and physical education. Game wardens and Maine guides taught us about life in the wild. Weatherman Lou McNally, of channel 8, presented a program to our two fourth grades.

High school boys' varsity basketball

Traip Academy 72, Telstar 66

Feb. 15--Despite an heroic effort, the Rebels came up short in a preliminary round Western Class C playoff game against Traip. It was Telstar's first playoff appearance since 1984. "I was proud of the way the kids battled. They would not give up, and it was a great experience for them," said coach Mark Thurlow. The Rebels led twice, briefly. Early in the third quarter they fell behind 50-39, but by the end of the quarter the gap closed to 52-48. Free throw shooting by Traip late in the game assured their victory. Leading Rebel point scorers were Caesar Morgan, with 22 points, and Tony Baker and Cory Koch with 14 each. Rebounds: Morgan, 10; Jason Berry, eight; Keith Stevens, seven. Assists: Koch and Berry, four each. Steals: Baker and Koch, three each. Thurlow extends his thanks to all the fans who followed the team all year.

Telstar 51, Gorham (N.H.) 25

Feb. 8--With Scamers had 14 points, Ross Baker 10 and Spencer Glover 10, the Rebels defeated Gorham. "Nathan Choever had 10-plus rebounds and five points, an outstanding individual effort," said coach Thurlow. The Rebels controlled the rebound and played good team defense.

Telstar 39, Oxford Hills (seventh grade) 36

Feb. 12--Cory Koch had 15 points and Will Scamers 12 as Telstar beat the Hawks. With 20 seconds left in the game, smart play by Greg Koch, Ross Baker and Will Scamers killed the clock, so the other team ran out of time. Scamers had 10 points. In the second half of the game, the boys played a defense which was the key to the victory.

Middle school girls' J.V. basketball

Telstar 29, Oxford Hills 20

Feb. 12--Telstar's Mary Beth had 10 points, Mary Scamers nine and Heather Smith four as the Rebels defeated the Hawks. Emily Haddad and Lynsey Brown also scored for Telstar. Scamers had 10 points and Smith had five. In the second half of the game, the girls played a defense which was the key to the victory.

Mellvickett 36, Telstar 17

Feb. 14--Mellvickett's Amanda Miller had five points in a loss to Mellvickett. "We finished our season with five wins and eight losses. We played our best basketball in our last game and improved. This team is going to be a success in the future," said coach Mike Thompson.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words comfort and hope for your daily life.

At times knowing, being aware of God's presence, seems to be easier (more evident) than at other times. Like:

--when the inspiring words of a reading speak loud and clear of God's love or comfort;

--when one sees joy radiate from the face of another upon realizing some good news;

--when the strains of a moving musical selection resounds with a harmony of praise;

--when one feels God's presence in the rising of the morning sun.

Then, at other times, knowing God's presence, the Holy One's being, maybe is a "bit" more subtle. Like:

--being carried through a woeful time;

--receiving the constant, wholesome support of friends in stressful times; or

--becoming aware, even if gradually, of a wonder-filled moment creeping into one's life.

Yes, God's presence comes in many ways -- throughout life. And, sometimes we can with integrity be a wise helper when in sharing God's caring ways; then, too, at other times we can receive.

Thanks be that God is with us!

The Rev. Janice M. Wilcox, minister, Oxford County United Parish, the East Stenham and North Waterford Congregational Churches, United Church of Christ, East Stenham
